First Army Division West pauses to remember 9-11

First Army Division West Soldiers at Fort Hood, Texas, observe a moment of silence during an eighth anniversary remembrance of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on the United States. Division West, a two-star subordinate headquarters of First Army with seven training brigades and 49 battalions, trains and validates an annual average of more than 800 mobilized Army Reserve and Army National Guard units for deployment to combat or other contingency operations.
